Miss Pixley has met with immense success and has been greeted everywhere with splendid houses. At the Boston Theatre she played "M'liss" for fourteen consecutive nights to a total of 22,000 people, and a similar experience has been hers everywhere. The drama itself is one that takes an immediate hold on the hearts of the audience, and the joys and sorrows of the "little waif of the mountains" are greeted now by laughter and now by the silent tribute of tears. Miss Pixley's support is worthy the star, and that is saying a good deal. Some of the mountain scenes are effective in the extreme. Secure seats early as there is sure to be a rush.

A PORTLAND MAN IN TROUBLE.

Last July Mr. A. F. MacAchorn of this city, merchant tailor, went to Norway and bought out the stock of Mr. Lewis O'Brion to the extent of $1000. Mr. MacAchorn then put in additional stock to the amount of $1500, making the whole stock worth about $2500. A note was given Mr. O'Brion for $900, secured by a mortgage on the entire stock, the note being payable in two installments, $400 in three, and $500 in six months. One hundred dollars were paid at the time that the purchase was made, and payments were subsequently made that reduced Mr. O'Brion's claim to beween $700 and $800.

Two weeks ago Saturday Mr. MacAchorn came to Portland, as was his habit Saturday nights, and in his absence Mr. O'Brion called pon Mr. MacAchorn's clerk and demanded the keys of the store, which were given him and he took possession of the store. On Monday Mr. MacAchorn demanded the keys, and asked him why he had taken possession, and Mr. O'Brion replied that "he didn't know but that his security might slip away from him." Mr. MacAchorn, by legal advice, made no attempt to remove him from the store, but informed him Friday that on Tuesday of the ollowing week he should pay his claim in full. The stock, at the lowest figure it could have been estimated at,Mr. MacAchorn claims, was worth over $2000, and he had made arrangements for money to pay the mortgage. The evening of Saturday, Oct. 16th, there was a Republican demonstration at Norway, and the store was closed early Saturday afternoon, Mr. O'Brion taking the keys and leaving after locking the store. The goods sold during the week, to the amount of perhaps $100, had been disposed of in O'Brion's interest, he taking the money and endorsing the amount received on MacAchorn's note. The streets were full of people all Saturday night, and while the parade continued any one might have en-tered the store with very little danger of being

Sunday morning Mr. O'Brion, C. E. Holt, Esq., an attorney. and Mr. George Brooks, went to the store and found the stock in confusion, looking in, as is claimed, through the window. Deputy Sheriff Blake came up, and Mr. Holt called Mr. MacAchorn's attention to the state of the goods. O'Brion unlocked the door and the whole party went in, and found that many of the more valuable goods had been cut and ruined. Mr. MacAchorn said to Mr. O'Brion, "What does this mean?" Mr. O'Brion made no reply. The damage done to the stock was probably to the amount of $1500.

Mr. C. M. Wormell, the detective, as called in but could find no trace of the store having been broken into, and the conclusion reached was the very natural one that somebody must have unlocked the door and walked in. The keys to the store were in the possession of O'Brion, and it was inferred that MacAchorn had entered by means of false keys and committed the outrage, and he was arrested and a hearing was had before T. G. Bridgham, Esq., trial justice. The trial commenced Wednesday morning at the Elm House at Norway and was concluded Friday noon. Messrs. Black and Holt of Norway appeared for the complainant, and Enoch Foster of Bethel and H. M. Bearce of Norway for the respondent. A large number of witnesses were examined and the facts as brought out by the evidence were very ably presented by the counsel on both sides, the result being that the respondent was discharged, no probable cause for his further detention having been shown.

The popular sentiment was strongly in favor of Mr. MacAchorn, his friends say, but that went to the store and found the stock in con-The popular sentiment was strongly in favor of Mr. MacAchorn, his friends say, but that gentleman denies the report that there was anything political in the feelings with which

The Greenback-Democratic Combine

The Greenback-Democratic grand political combination appeared at City Hall Saturday one of its amusing entertainnents. All the performers with the exception of the "star," Gen. Plaisted, were remarkably good. The general was a little heavy and while he was on the boards a good many people left the hall to "see a man" and the demand for return checks was not remarkably

Gen. Anderson acted as stage manager and also delivered a comic speech. He wasn't in the least discouraged by the elections in the West, but was looking with anxious eyes toward Florida, expecting to see a crowd of "repeaters" taking up their line of march thence from Indiana. Gen. Andersen is respectfully informed that the "repeaters" were sent back to Kentucky a good many of them before they voted once, and the Lemocratic national committee lost a good deal of money by them. The general was in favor of a tariff sufficient to pay all the "running expenses" of the government, but he didn't explain as fully ias he ought to have done what his idea of running expenses is. If he will penses" of the government, but he didn't explain as fully as he ought to have done what his idea of running expenses is. If he will take the trouble to recall the history of the last Democratic administration he will recall also the fact that about everything, expenses included, was on the run, the Secretary of the Treasury holding on with true Democratic persistency until the money all run out. If we must have another Democratic administration like that of Buchanan we shall have to have a pretty big tariff if the running expenses are to be paid. There was but one new thing in the General's speech and that was the statement that the remonetization of silver brought prosperity with it. It may be remembered that he has been in the habit of ascribing with pious fervor, our increased prosperity to Providence.

Gen. Plaisted (the performance was intended as a "benefit" for him) then came forward and made a speech that was not really comic. He sustained his well earned reputation of being able to clean out a house quicker than any other man in the state, not even excepting the late Alonzo Garcelon, M. D.

The Hon. Thompson H. Murch, well known as one of the best of living comic men, made a speech that was really good. He believed that Gov. Davis can't be again inaugurated unless his supporters walk over the bodies of 74,000 Fusionists. We want Mr. Murch to distinctly understand that the prohibitory law of this state is not likely to become a dead letter to such an extent that 74,000 Fusionists can be down at once.

The song "Hold the fort for honest money" to such an extent that 74,000 Fusionists can be down at once.

The song "Hold the fort for honest money" was then sung, and the humor of the joke was seen and freely applauded, and would probably have been given an encore if it hadn't been necessary to give the eminent end man, Mr. Torrey of Bath, a few minutes in which to crack a few of his best jokes. The combination will give a matinee performance at Biddeford today.

CHESTNUT STREET CHURCH. At the Chestnut street church Rev. C. J. Clark, the pastor, preached from the text in Mic. vi. 8. "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly and love mercy, and to work humbly with thy God?" The Bible reaches down to earth and by its requirements stretch-es over the whole field of human action—duty to God and obligation to man. We have here the summing up of human requirements, similar to the statement of Jesus, that the love of God and our neighbor constitutes the sum of Bible is the harmony of all its truths in both the Old and New Testaments. "To do justly" in the text means that one should be just and right in all his actions. We know that there is often a wide difference between the sentiment of pity in the heart and its practical application in actual life. But the Bible requires of each man to cherish a deep interest in the welfare of his fellow men. When Jesus came into the world he brought love into it with him—hence we are to follow his example. But the common law of justice and equity calls upon us to care for the temporal welfare of our neighbors. But do we ask, who is our neighbors? Jesus tells us in the parable of the Good Samaritan. The whole human race is allied to us; and we must count all our neighbors. We often divide men into classes and think we will help our own class; but Christ did not do so. He helped every one of every class when he had the opportunity. Hence common justice appeals to us to help every one that may need our help. All that we have belongs to God, and we must use it to help the Lord's creatures—because they are his creatures. But we are also to love mercy. We are not to do just as little as possible—but our love is to be overflowing like the love of Christ. He drew all the poor and sick and sorrowing to himself and blessed them. If he did so much for us, we ought to be willing to sacrifice something for him. It is one thing to wish that all may be helped, and quite another to work for their relief. But we must look at the spirit in which we are to do this. We are to walk humbly before God. Human pride forgets that all good comes from God and so forgets God; but the humble will remember this and do all possible good to all suffering ones, and thus help Jesus in helping his suffering poor.

WILLISTON CHURCH. The pastor, Rev. F. E. Clark preached from Psalms 137: 12. I know of no words in the Bible better fitted to elevate the minds of men than these of the Psalmist. In no words of poets are these surpassed. Every one of the wonderful verses are illustrated by the achievements of science and knowledge in the past half century, and who has done all these things? Man with his life bounded by three score years and ten, who can be scorched with heat and frozen with cold. Contrast the power of the creature with that of the Creator "who upholdeth all things by the weight of his power." With a poet's vision David imagins modes of travel like that of the morning light. We have accomplished much that is as wonderful in our mode of communica ting thought that is as rapid as the "wings of the morning." If from man, whose means of communication is so perfect that the defaulter cannot escape how much less can we escape from Him who inspires all these things?

It is implied that it is impossible to get away from God because his power reaches to every part of the universe. Think of the power of the central government of these United States which can shield the humblest sailor in the farthest part of the world. This is the power of man. We are dazed and struck dumb by the wonderful power of God. He indeed is omniscient and omnipotent.

What is your relation to this One? Are you His friend or His foe? Every invention of man urges upon us the question. He who gave man all knowledge and who is the embodiment of all power urges upon each one the consideration of this question.

If you are a foe you can well echo the Psalmist's words "Where shall I go." But if a friend with what joy can you say "If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me." the morning." If from man, whose means of

Rev. Mr. Anderson preached at the First Baptist church from the text in Gen. 12:13-"In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." We are struck with the unit of this book of Genesis we find many truths comnon to the teaching of Jesus given some thousand years later. We find in this blessing ronounced upon Abraham a full indication r conception of the scope of the blessing contained in the religion of Christ. From these words we may learn the ennobling character of the Christian religion in its elevating influence upon the individual believer. The first characteristic of this religion that we see is its permanence. Not one person is to be blessed, but it is to extend down the ages, and to all men; and it is to be accomplished by faith in God. Again, we see the universality of this religion. All the families of the earth were to be embraced in the blessing. It is also a beneficent religion, not selfish in its influence, but it leads its subjects to work for the good of all others whom they are able to reach. Look now at whom they are able to reach. Look now at the means by which this religion is to be a blessing to the world. It is through the personal efforts of jits possessors; hence we see the obligation resting upon us. This faith then elevates its possessor and urges him to work by giving him an increasing sense of his obligation. It also incites the diligence of its possessor by giving him a wider and wider idea of the importance and magnitude of the work he is accomplishing for the world; for he remembers that this religion is to transform the world. Another ennobling incentive to the believer in his work is the confidence he has that the work will be successful. The ennobling influence of this religion is seen in the elevating character of the motives presented. The Christian seeks to advance great principles, and for reasons outside of himself. The work appeals to the noblest elements of the human character. The doctrine of a personal immortality is revealed to us; but we are to seek that a blessed immortality may come to others through the blessing that comes to us. Two thoughts in conclusion: Let us labor that the families of this state may be blessed through our influence. Again may cur own families be blessed through us, and in us. May God help us to live that the families in the world at large, in our own families may be the world at large, in our own state and city and the members of our own families may be

HIGH STREET CHURCH. Miss F. E. Willard, of Chicago, President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, spoke at the High street church last evening. She is a pleasant speaker, and held the close attention of the very large audience to the close. Her subject was temperance. We find that intemperance is intrenched be hind the customs of society. Very well, let the work be carried into society. It is intrenched behind the law. Very well, let the battle be carried into the government; but governments depend upon majorities. Very well, we must educate the people. It is intrenched behind the fortress of false science. If so let us carry the work into the schools. The speaker came before the audience she was addressing from the work for the cause in twenty-six States, and had only good reports to bring back. Still the work is not ended. The N. W. C. T. U. is the sober second thought of the woman's crusade. The women went into what they thought would be a skirmish, and find to-day that it is to be a long campaign.

The temperance question has many things yet to contend with. The poet, the novelist, the painter still sing, write and paint the beauty of the wine cup, as they did in days of old. The Christian religion did not reach the height to which it has risen till the very best talent of the man of genius had been invoked. The work of the temperance cause must be advanced by the leisure class. We must be ready to enter the world of fashion with this cause. She paid a high tribute to Mrs. Hayes, who banished wine from the sideboard and table at the White House. Mrs. Hayes has made the temperance cause fashionable. A lady from Fifth Avenue said to the lecturer, "Mrs. Hayes has helped me to hold the fort for total abstinence. I was about to give up, but now I can say to my fashionable friends, "Ladies, Mrs. Hayes has set us a good example." She rejoiced that the great hero of the war, Gen. Grant, has become a total abstainer, and from the moment of his arrival at San Francisco has turned the wine glass at the side of his plate the right side up, that is, upside down.

The lecture was an able and, in many rethe work is not ended. The N. W. C. T. U. is nis plate the right slow up, that is, upside down.

The lecture was an able and, in many respects, an eloquent one, full of practical as well as thrilling illustrations and appeals. At the close a collection was taken up in aid of the W. C. T. U. of this city.

CONGRESS SQUARE UNIVERSALIST CHURCH. The Rev. W. E. Gibbs preached yesterday morning from Gal. vi, 10—"The household of faith." The speaker while attending the National Council of the Universalist church had world. The faith that the Universalist church holds was not born 100 years ago, but came to bless the world with Jesus. The hope was with Abraham that in his seed all the nations of .he earth should be blessed. The church can point to the early writers of the Christian church who are in accord with it in its grand

The other churches are feeling the influence of the Universalist church. Dr. Thomas, the eloquent Methodist clergyman of Chicago, when he preached his last sermon in the Methodist Centennial church, was greeted with applause when he declared his disbelief in the eternity of punishment. Dr. Thomas believes that if there is a soul that cannot be reached and influenced by the love of God, it will cease to exist, while the Universalist church holds that there is not, and cannot be a soul that the love of God, as revealed in Jesus Christ, cannot reach and save. We, as a church have reason to hold to our faith, to the faith that presents the great thought of the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man; to the faith that presents the great thought of the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man; to the faith that process the great thought of the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of complete triumph of Jesus Christ, and a greater consecration of mind and means is demanded, as our faith is deeper and broader than the faith of others. The church must send its missionaries everywhere. The demand for preachers is great and must be met. We must devote ourselves anew to the service of the living God; we must give new evidence that Christ God and our neighbor constitutes the sum of human duty. One of the beauties of the therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto those who are of the household offaith." The Greenbackers. At a meeting of the Greenback State committee held here Saturday it was resolved to make some changes in the electoral ticket. An attempt was made to induce Chase and Turner to withdraw their opposition to Fusion, nto the world he brought love into it with but both declined to make any concession, and the straight Greenbackers that he should withdraw from the regular Congress Hall ticket, and addressed the following letter to Mr. S. A. Berry:

FARFIELD, Me., Oct. 22, 1880.

To Samuel A. Berry, Chairman:

Deeming it for the best interests of the party that the Greenback vote in this State be concentrated against the Republican party, I hereby resign the nomination of elector, and would suggest that the name of George W. Worster be substituted for mine. BENJ. BUNKER. The resignation of Mr. Bunker was accepted and the name of Mr. Worster was substituted. At the time of the Greenback State convention for the choice of electors Mr. Bunker was nominated as one of the candidates. At the meeting of the bolters, held at the City Hall, when it was proposed to nominate Mr. Bunker it was found that, with the exception of Solon Chase, the straight Greenbackers were not in favor of him, and he was set aside. As the campaign went on Mr. Bunker became more open in his support of Hancock, until the New Era-Leader called the attention of the Greenback party to his course in the following para

Benjamin Bunker is Secretary of the Greenback State committee. He publishes what he calls a Greenback paper. Gen. J. B Weaver is the Presidential candidate of the Greenback party. Mr. Bunker is supposed to be a Weaver candidate for Presidential elector. Yet he praises Hancock, abuses Garfield, and says not a word editorially about Weaver in his paper, but publishes the silly slander of D er D. Lum against Gen. Weaver, and does not publish a word from Gen. Weaver or any one else in denial. To a man up a tree that looks very much as though Mr. Bunker is a good enough Democrat.

Gen. Plaisted, Congressman Murch and Mr. Bunker himself came here and labored with those who are in opposition to fusion, and, more particularly endeavored to secure the withdrawal of Mr. Worster in favor of Mr Bunker, but, as has been said, Mr. Chase and Mr. Turner refused to concede anything. The attempt to bring those who call them, selves straight Greenbackers over to the support of the Congress Hall ticket having failed Mr. Bunker has stepped down and out with the hope, perhaps, that the objection entertained by Solon Chase and his friends against voting for three Democratic candidates migh
